Katja Gaskell - Gas Station Eats

Oct 21, 2022 - Oct 29, 2022

This road trip takes place in No Man's Land, a strip of land in southwest Louisiana. The disputed territory served as an official buffer zone between Spain and the United States following the Louisiana purchase of 1803. Once a place of outlaws, bandits and brave pioneers, today this area is home to some of the best eats in the state.

This road trip follows the Gas Station Eats trail, a 450-mile route along back roads that runs through seven southwest Louisiana parishes. It's a trail where "the gas is secondary and the food is primary".

Every gas station is a unique place to eat, each with its own speciality. There's the South Beau Dairy Barn, which offers Natchitoches meat pies (made famous in 'Steel Magnolias'), the Big Thicket BBQ for BBQ brisket and ribs, Shop-A-Lott for gumbo and Lakefront Grocery for Zwolle hot tamales. There's even what the locals like to call a "seven course meal", a pound of boudin sausage (pronounced boo-dan!) and a six pack or a "meat and three", a plate lunch that includes meat and three sides.

But you're not just here for the food. This trail also showcases some of the best of Louisiana starting in the Cane River National Heritage Area, which includes Natchitoches, the oldest settlement in the Louisiana Purchase. Along the way there's the Gothic Jail in DeRidder that's believed to be haunted, the Kisatchie National Forest where you can hike, bike or horseback ride, and the Creole Nature Trail All American Road, home to alligators and 400 species of bird life.

Welcome to Louisiana

You've arrived in New Orleans, one of the most famous cities in the country. Take in some of the sights, sounds and flavors of New Orleans before you begin your journey along the heel of "the boot" that is Louisiana. Prepare to hit the road for a journey of delicious proportions as you explore No Man's Land.

Check in at International House

International House Hotel

221 Camp Street, New Orleans, LA, US
(504) 553-9550

International House is a boutique hotel and joyful tribute to New Orleans today - an ensemble of historic architecture, colorful characters, cheerful culture, signature food and local music unlike any other city in America.

It's about the cross-pollination of cultures. European romance. Caribbean ways and African influences. The struggle with change. Life percolated, steeped, marinated, distilled and lived. Spirited and spiritual. Played out for nearly 300 years and counting. On this great river and in this classic Beaux Arts building. Once the first world trade center in the world, our downtown New Orleans hotel offers 117 guest rooms, suites and penthouses, as well a destination bar and popular restaurant.

October 22 - Saturday - New Orleans

Welcome to New Orleans!

In New Orleans, visitors are delighted by the French Creole elegance of the Vieux Carre (French Quarter) or the opulence discovered in a streetcar ride through the Garden District and Uptown.

Anytime of year find live music, amazing Creole and Cajun cuisine, fresh seafood, farmers markets, shopping, nightlife and more. During Mardi Gras season, the city becomes the world's center. Downtown transforms into an adult playground, while parades in residential areas provide children thrilling entertainment. Each spring, the New Orleans Jazz & Heritage Festival moves the focus to the charming Gentilly area and the Fair Grounds Race Course. But no matter the time of year, New Orleans' calendar overflows in celebration.

Beignet Breakfast

You'll have five vouchers for breakfast at the famous Cafe du Monde

Cafe Du Monde

800 Decatur St, New Orleans, LA, US, 70116
(504) 525-4544

10:30 AM - Central Daylight Time

Visit the Southern Food and Beverage Museum

Here you'll meet with Liz Williams, the founder of the museum, for a personal tour through some of Louisiana's culinary and cocktail history.

Southern Food and Beverage Museum

1504 Oretha Castle Haley Boulevard, New Orleans, LA, US
(504) 569-0405

Southern Food & Beverage Museum hosts special exhibits, demonstrations, lectures and tastings that showcase the food and drink of the South. Featured in the museum is The Museum of the American Cocktail's New Orleans Collection, La Galerie de l'Absinthe, Culinary Innovation Center by Jenn-Air, and the new Gumbo Garden.

Lunch at Mother's

One staple food in Louisiana is "debris." The term was coined right here at Mother's Restaurant.

Ever picked the shavings off a freshly carved roast? When a customer asked Simon Landry to add the bits of roast beef that had fallen into the gravy while he was carving it to his sandwich, he replied "you mean some of the debris?"

The rest is delicious history.

New Orleans and Company will provide a VISA credit card to help support the lunch.

Mother's Restaurant

401 Poydras Street, New Orleans, LA, US
(504) 523-9656

Mother's Restaurant opened its doors in 1938 on Poydras Street's "Restaurant Row", situated between a thriving waterfront and the courthouse. Owners Simon and Mary (Mother) Landry and his large family cooked up po' boys for lines of longshoremen and laborers, newspapermen and attorneys. While the business landscape around Mother's has changed through the years, the restaurant continues - almost exactly the same and flourishing.

Visit Vue Orleans

Take in spectacular views of the city, and learn more about the history and culture that makes it so great.

Vue Orleans

2 Canal Street, New Orleans, LA, US
504-285-3600

Rise high above NOLA and discover the city's only 360° observatory, offering stunning views in every direction. Venture inside and immerse yourself in the stories and storymakers that make New Orleans a tale that's always worth telling. From history and culture to food, art, festivals and music, there's a taste of this magical city for all. Start at Vue Orleans and you'll be inspired to hit the streets and explore!

Check out the Krewe of Boo!

If there's one thing we love in Louisiana it's a parade. And we don't need to wait for Mardi Gras to roll around again to have one. The Krewe of Boo was founded in 2007 and is the official Halloween parade of New Orleans.

The parade rolls at 6:30 pm and will pass Camp Street (where your hotel is located) as it makes its way down Canal Street. The full route is online at <https://www.kreweofboo.com/>

October 23 - Sunday - Lake Charles

Check out at International House

Mansfield State Historic Site

15149 Louisiana 175, Mansfield, LA, US
(318) 872-1474

A series of skirmishes here and at nearby Pleasant Hill resulted in many casualties, mostly on the Union side, pushing Northern forces back south. The Rebels' win arguably kept Louisiana from falling into Union hands. You can learn more about these battles and the Red River Campaign in general at Mansfield State Historic Site. There, you'll find monuments to the fallen as well as a museum; and can walk the same battlefield where the two nations once fought. You'll even find a marble fireplace that once sat in the east wing of the White House in the museum.
